NO OPPOSITION

Once again the distinguished Congressman representing the Fourth District, the Hon. Pat H. Drewry, has no Democratic opposition, and will be returned to Washington to continue his fine record of service to the district and state.

Our congressman ranks high in the councils of his party and has rendered invaluable service to his constituency. It is a tribute to his ability and popularity that the old Fourth is one of Virginia's best organized and most loyal districts. So, here's greetings and best wishes to our beloved congressman, 'Pat' Drewry.

RUSHING THINGS

The TIMES- VIRGINIAN notes that our good friends in Lynchburg would like to have the dedication of the proposed national park at old Appomattox, with the sesqui-centennial to be celebrated by the Hill City this fall.

We deeply appreciate the wonderful spirit of interest and cooperation our Lynchburg neighbors have shown all through the long efforts to secure proper memorialization at Appomattox. Their help has been invaluable and further cements our friendship. But we are afraid it is out of the question to consider dedication of the park this fall. 'Tis a consumation devoutly to be wished. The simple facts are that although the park is assured, insufficient progress has been made to consider a dedication this fall. We will be pleased if it will be possible by April 9, 1937. An event of that kind cannot be prepared overnight.

Appomattox wants to share in the observance of Lynchburg's big celebration this fall, and hopes that some actual deed of cooperation can be worked out. And we could wish that the park dedication could be ready.

FOR UNDERSTANDING

Modern civilization rightly urges a peaceful settlement of all disputes. There are enough dangers to life as it is, without subjecting whole populations to mass slaughter. The courts of arbitration of the world are our biggest advance over the old rule of tooth and claw.

And as a factor toward world peace and goodwill, we cite the current Olympic games in Berlin. The finest examples of youth from all the world are met to vie in a series of contests as old as civilization itself. Win or lose, these young men and women will return to their native lands with a wholesome respect for the other countries.

It is much better to have French and German youths trying to outjump and out run each other than trying to kill each other.

CHOICE OF ISSUES

We are impressed with the position taken by the Southside Virginia NEWS, of Petersburg, as to the congressional contests in the second and third districts. Said newspaper laments that the big question before the voters seems to be which candidate can get the most federal money spent in the district.

The NEWS asks the question, What does the candidate think of the government of the United States?

FOR AND NOT AGAINST

In order for ballots in large volume not to be thrown out in next November's election, quite a bit of publicity must be given the new way of marking the ballot. Voters who go to the polls and scratch their ballot the old way will find that they aren't voting at all.

Under the new law, you put a check opposite the name you want, instead of scratching the ones you don't want. A ruling made this week says you may still scratch out names you don't want, but your ballot doesn't count unless you put a check mark beside the one you do want to vote for. The idea of the new method is that you vote FOR a candidate instead of AGAINST. The new method is held to be much simpler, and after it is tried out it should be popular.

Park Booklet Is Published

Thousands of copies of a new booklet describing the scenic beauty of the Shenandoah National Park in Virginia have just been published by the state chamber of commerce, and are being given national distribution.

The booklet is published in response to pressing demands for information about the park. Later a permanent publication about the park will be gotten out by the National Park Service.

A contemplated area of a million visitors a year is planned for the park.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

Agricultural Notes

A good home does not operate on a dole system.

• • •

Seventy-seven per cent of the farm homes still use lamps for lighting purposes.

• • •

A farm woman who does not have rural water yearly carries two tons of water two miles.

• • •

The champion and reserve champion carload lots of cattle at the 1935 International were fed corn on pasture until August 10 and September 1, respectively, and then finished in dry lot.

• • •

More Ohio farmers are using farm account books than in recent years, and books closed for last year indicate a general gain in farm income.

Losses caused by the yellow dwarf disease of potatoes in 1935 were probably the worst that New York state has yet experienced.

Sowing and Reaping

IN HUMAN experience one must first sow before one can reap, and one reaps what one sows. If one sows pansy seeds in a garden, one can not expect forget-me-nots to appear. Rather does one watch eagerly for the first green of the pansy plant to push its way through the earth, already visioning the velvety flowers to follow. If, on the other hand, weeds are allowed to grow in a garden, what can be expected but a growth of weeds. Therefore, a wise gardener is careful in his sowing and watchful in his weeding.

In Deuteronomy, Moses is recorded as saying: (22:9): "Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest the fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of thy vineyard, be defiled." Even if one is careful in one's selection of seeds, with the first appearance of the dainty plants may come the harmful weeds. Anyone who has done much gardening knows how aggressive the weeds strive to outdo the plants, and what alertness is required to see that the weeding keeps pace with the eager pushing forward of the desired plants.

Mary Baker Eddy writes in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 343), "The weeds of mortal mind are not always destroyed by the first uprooting; they reappear, like devastating witchgrass, to choke the entire crop. How we all dislike to see a weed-clogged, overgrown garden! And we realize the work involved before all devastating weeds are cleared out; for, from the time of ripening, their seeds have set only been re-seeding their immediate vicinity, but have also been blowing hither and yon to interfere with the neighbors' gardens. Occasionally, if the weeds are rank on the adjoining property, the one whose garden is clear may be required to be annoyed, and even to feel that punishment should come to those responsible for letting the weeds scatter their seeds. But immediately comes the realization that if any weeds have been left in one's own garden, they may be blowing over the fence to someone else's flower bed. The wise plan is to keep up one's own weeding, and then guard in every way against the possible encroachment of weeds from without. Sometimes the weeds are so nearly like the plant or flower that one fails to recognize them at first glance, and care is required not to pull up the plant.

If we liken the seeds in our gardens to the mental qualities that we encounter in our everyday experience, we find hypocrisy claiming to be almost identical with the lovely flower of consecration. Deceit and dishonesty, envy and jealousy are poisonous if one lets them in, as also are apathy and indifference. The noxious weeds of revenge and retaliation, and the rank growth of hatred would kill whatever comes within their range. So, we must be ever-watchful that we pull up the rank growth of mortal mind in order that the lovely flowers of unselfishness, happiness, fidelity, co-operation, unity, and peace may not be crowded out. As are our individual mental gardens, so are the mental gardens of the nations and of the whole world affected. What joy will come when all mankind learns this glorious lesson of thankfulness!

Sometimes, as one sees error flaunting itself in the world around us, evil may appear to become more firmly entrenched, and one is tempted to believe that power lies in erroneous thinking; but what error sows will be reaped in time. Evil attempts to plant what ends in remorse which only the truth can wipe out. Why waste a moment worrying for fear error should have its own way? Why ever be tempted to want to avenge a wrong? If one has been sowing forgiveness all the time, he will soon be reaping gardens of forgiveness that only compassion can be felt for the blindness of those who would not see. Mrs. Eddy writes in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 228), "To know that a deception dark as it is base has been practised upon thee,—by those deemed at least indebted friends whose welfare thou hast promoted,—and not to avenge thyself, is to do good to thyself."

There are no flowers so lovely as the mental-flowers which grow in a garden of gratitude and forgiveness. When one can actually send forth love and can desire to see another who has injured him go forward the very fountain of love are unloosed for him. . . .

What wonderful things will happen among nations and peoples when they can sow and reap in this worth-while way; when individuals and nations learn to watch for and dispose of the unlovely weeds that fringe the highways and byways of international co-operation, and work together for the good of all. World peace will then be assured, and hideous, revengeful war, with all its terrors, will disappear into nothingness. Let us sow the lovely things of God, that we may reap them.—The Christian Science Monitor.

"Umm— that looks good, Mother"

Mother's pies are always good . . . they're baked in her Electric Range Oven

Can't blame the little girl for having eyes bigger than her stomach. That pie is as good as it looks, fresh from Mother's Electric Range where oven heat is kept —automatically—at just the right baking temperature for just the right length of time. No wonder all Mother's pies are ready to melt in your mouth.

Automatic oven heat for better baking is only one outstanding advantage of an Electric Range. Let us—or your dealer—demonstrate all of them to you. A few minutes of your time now may mean years of carefree cooking to come.
